

INTERTWINING INSPIRATION

Bijou Robertson

Oregon State University, Corvallis, OR 97331

Intertwining Inspiration is named for its combination of inspirations that evolved into this jacket and skirt. The jacket of dark blue velveteen, lined in royal purple silk, was inspired by Renaissance jackets that were fitted in the upper body with a peplum attached from the waist. It has Asian-inspired geometric insets at the side seams that provide some of the fitting. The sleeves feature a cutout with a gold braid laced detail. The tails of the peplum reflect the leaf shapes on the Asian print motif of the skirt. The knit skirt printed fabric is over printed with gold leaves. The skirt of Turkish inspiration is gathered in center front and center back and cascades into cowls at the hem of the skirt.