New SAA Fellows

Four MAC members recently were honored for outstanding contributions to the archives profession by being named Society of American Archivists (SAA) fellows at SAA's annual meeting in Washington, D.C. David Haury is the Pennsylvania state archivist. During 10 years at Bethel College in Kansas, he moved from assistant archivist to directorships of the college's research library and the archives of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church. He followed with 15 years at the Kansas State Historical Society, first as assistant, then associate director. In 2004, Haury became the director of the Bureau of Archives and History and state archivist for the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission. Haury has proven leadership not only in SAA but also the Council of State Archivists and MAC. His contributions as a scholar include books and articles on the history of Mennonite faith and community; his extensive experience as an editor includes several books, a large number of Mennonite periodicals, Archival Issues, and the MAC Newsletter. Haury also was involved in the SAA publications program for a decade.

Chris Prom is assistant university archivist and associate professor of library administration at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. One of his nominators said: "Prom represents the best of the archives profession—he is a pragmatist practitioner . . . a scholar who grounds his research on efforts to make archives work more efficient, more forward-looking, and more practical . . . and an effective collaborator, both within the profession and in helping to bridge the gap between archivists and librarians." Prom is the co-director of the ARCHON project. During the 2009–2010 year, he was Fulbright Distinguished Scholar at the University of Dundee (Scotland), where he conducted the Practical E-Records project, seeking to develop cost-effective approaches to identifying, preserving, and providing access to born digital records. Prom has demonstrated extraordinary commitment to the archives profession through service on a variety of committees in SAA and MAC, ranging from technical standards to editorial boards. He further has committed himself regularly to publishing his work so that others may benefit.

Scott Schwartz is archivist for music and fine arts and adjunct professor at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. As one of his nominator's noted: "Scott represents the best of an archivist, always finding ways to increase awareness of what an archives is and what it can offer to the public and to generate enthusiasm for archives as a profession." His transformation of the Sousa Archives into a vibrant Center for American Music has been recognized by the more than 15 awards and grants he has received. In 2004, Schwartz convinced the United States Senate to declare November as American Music Month. His contributions to the field are many: as a principal developer of the award-winning ARCHON software; as technological coordinator for a variety of programs at the Smithsonian Institution, including the Ivory Soap Advertising Digital Image Library and the Scurlock Photograph Collection Image Library; and through publishing of articles in the professional literature and presentations at archives workshops. Prior to joining the University of Illinois in 2003, Schwartz worked for 10 years as archivist at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History and as technical archives specialist at East Tennessee State University.

Becky Haglund Tousey is archives senior manager at Kraft Foods, Inc., where she runs a global corporate archives program with repositories and staff in several countries. She has gained the respect and support of Kraft Foods management, as well as of her archival colleagues, for her outstanding professional standards and execution. Tousey has shared her knowledge and best practices around the world, by presenting at conferences in North America and Europe. As one of her nominators noted, "Becky's management of Kraft's archives has served as a beacon of excellence and adaptation." Tousey is well-known for advancing the goals and activities of regional, national, and international archival associations through her exemplary service in numerous positions, including terms on SAA and MAC councils, as cochair of SAA's Program Committee and Host Committee, and as secretary of the International Council on Archives Section for Business and Labour Archives. Less well-known are her frequent unsung volunteer activities, such as the 15 years she spent leading teams of ballot counters for SAA elections. Her nominators spoke frequently of her intelligence, commitment to the profession, kindness, hard work, and modesty.
